

Data protection

It is generally possible to use our website without supplying personal data. If personal data (for example name, address or e-mail address) is collected on our pages, this is always done on a voluntary basis wherever possible. This data is not passed on to third parties without your express consent.

We wish to point out that data transmission on the Internet (for example in the case of e-mail communication) may be subject to security breaches. It is not possible to completely protect data from being accessed by third parties.

Server-Log-Files

The page provider automatically collects and saves information in what are known as server log files which your browser automatically forwards to us. This information comprises:

- Browser type/browser version
- Operating system used
- Referrer URL
- Host name of the computer accessing the page
- Time of server request

This data cannot be associated with specific individuals. This data is not consolidated with other data sources. We reserve the right to subsequently check this data if specific indications of illegal use become known to us.

Cookies

Some websites use what are known as cookies. Cookies do not cause any damage to your computer and do not contain any viruses. Cookies are used to make our service more user-friendly, effective and secure. Cookies are small text files that are stored on your computer and saved by your browser.

Most of the cookies we use are what are known as "session cookies". They are automatically deleted once you leave our website. Other cookies remain saved on your terminal until you delete them. These cookies make it possible for us to recognise your browser the next time you visit our site.

You can configure the settings for your browser to inform you if a website places cookies in it. You can also use this option to allow cookies on a case-by-case basis only, prohibit cookies from being saved in certain cases or in general and activate a function for automatically deleting cookies when you close your browser. Deactivating cookies may restrict the functionality of this website.

Session data (session cookies) must be saved. This data is required for various modules, such as user login, the product finder and language selection.

This saves your preference for accepting cookies.
